<sup>(a)</sup> The votes of the representatives is typical and may have fluctuated from ballot to ballot, but the result for each state did not change.

<sup>(b)</sup> Even though Georgia had two representatives apportioned, one seat was vacant due to the death of James Jones.

<sup>(c)</sup> Even though South Carolina had six representatives apportioned, Thomas Sumter was absent due to illness, and Abraham Nott departed for South Carolina between the first and final ballots.

Electoral College selection<sup>[edit]</sup>

The Constitution, in Article II, Section 1, provided that the state legislatures should decide the manner in which their electors were chosen. Different state legislatures chose different methods:<sup>[70]</sup>

Method of choosing electors	State(s)
State is divided into electoral districts, with one Elector chosen per district by the voters of that district	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Kentucky</li> <li>• Maryland</li> <li>• North Carolina</li> </ul>
Each Elector chosen by voters statewide	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Rhode Island</li> <li>• Virginia</li> </ul>
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• State is divided into electoral districts, with one Elector chosen per district</li> <li>• Each county chooses an electoral delegate by popular vote</li> <li>• Elector is chosen by electoral delegates of the counties within their district</li> </ul>	Tennessee
Each Elector appointed by state legislature	(all other states)
