

OUTLINE OF THUCYDIDES

(Source: Wikipedia)

Book 1

The state of Greece from the earliest times to the commencement of the Peloponnesian War, also known as the Archaeology. 1.1–1.19.

Methodological excursus. 1.20–1.23

Causes of the war (433–432 BC) 1.24–1.66

The Affair of Epidamnus. 1.24–1.5

The Affair of Potidaea. 1.56–1.66A

Congress of the Peloponnesian League at Lacedaemon. 1.67–1.88

The Speech of the Corinthians. 1.68–1.71

The Speech of the Athenian envoys. 1.73–1.78

The Speech of Archidamus. 1.80–1.85

The Speech of Sthenelaidas. 1.86

From the end of the Persian War to the beginning of the Peloponnesian War, also known as the Pentecontaetia. 1.89–1.117

The progress from supremacy to empire.

Second congress at Lacedaemon and the Corinthian Speech. 1.119–1.125

Diplomatic maneuvering. 1.126–1.139

Excursus on Cylon. 1.126–1.127

Excursus on Pausanias and Themistocles. 1.128–1.138

Pericles' first speech. 1.140–1.145

Book 2 (431–428 BC)

War begins with Thebes' attempt to subvert Plataea. 2.1–2.6

Account of the mobilization of and list of the allies of the two combatants. 2.7–2.9

First invasion of Attica. 2.10–2.23

Archidamus leads the Peloponnesian army into Attica. 2.10–2.12

Athenian preparations and abandonment of the countryside. 2.13–2.14

Excursus on Athenian synoikism. 2.15–2.16

Difficult conditions in Athens for refugees from countryside. 2.17

Archidamus ravages Oenoe and Acharnai. 2.18–2.20

Athenian fury and anger at Pericles. 2.21–2.22

Athenian naval counterattacks along coast of Peloponnese and islands. 2.23–2.32

Pericles' Funeral Oration. 2.34–2.46

The plague of Athens. 2.47–2.54

Second invasion of Attica and Athenian naval counterattacks. 2.55–2.58

Pericles' third speech, defending his position and policy. 2.59–2.64

Thucydides' estimate of Pericles' qualities and the causes for Athens' eventual defeat. 2.65

Diplomacy and skirmishes in Thrace, the islands, and the Northeast. 2.66–2.69

Fall of Potidaea. 2.70

Investment of Plataea. 2.71–2.78

Naval victories of Phormio in the Northeast. 2.80–2.92

Threat of raid on the Piraeus. 2.93–2.94

Thracian campaign in Macedonia under Sitalces. 2.95–2.101

Book 3 (428–425 BC)

Annual invasion of Attica. 3.1

Revolt of Mytilene. 3.2–3.50

Speech of Mytilenian envoys to Sparta at Olympia, asking for help. 3.9–3.14

Sparta accepts Lesbos as an ally and prepares to counter the Athenians. 3.15

Mytilene surrenders to Athens despite Spartan support. 3.28

Mytilenian Debate. 3.37–3.50

Fall of Plataea. 3.20–3.24, 3.52–68

Some Plataeans escape. 3.20–3.24.

Plataea surrenders. 3.52.

Trial and execution of the Plataeans. 3.53–3.68.

Speech of Plataeans, 3.53–3.59

Speech of the Thebans. 3.61–3.67

Revolution at Corcyra. 3.70–3.85

Thucydides' account of the evils of civil strife. 3.82–3.84

Athenian campaigns in Sicily. 3.86, 3.90, 3.99, 3.103, 3.115–3.116

Tsunami and inquiry into its causes 3.89.2–5

Campaigns of Demosthenes in western Greece. 3.94–3.98, 3.100–3.102, 3.105–3.114

Spartans establish Heraclea in Trachis. 3.92–3.93

Athenians purify Delos. 3.104

Book 4 (425–423 BC)

Annual invasion of Attica. 4.2

Athenians en route to Sicily occupy Pylos in the Peloponnese. 4.2–4.6

King Agis of Sparta cuts short the invasion of Attica to return to the Peloponnese. 4.6

Concerted Spartan attack on the Athenian fort at Pylos. 4.8–4.15

The Athenian general Demosthenes coordinates the defense of Pylos and rouses the troops with a speech. 4.9–4.10

The Spartan commander Brasidas distinguishes himself for bravery. 4.11–4.12

The Athenians defeat the Spartan assault on Pylos and cut off a garrison of Spartans on the adjacent island of Sphacteria. 4.13–4.14

The Spartans, concerned for the men on the island, conclude an immediate armistice and send an embassy to Athens to negotiate peace. 4.13–4.22

The speech of the Spartan ambassadors offers to peace and alliance to Athens in exchange for the return of the men on Sphacteria. 4.17–4.20

The Athenian Cleon, speaking in the Assembly, encourages the Athenians to demand the return of the territories surrendered by Athens at the conclusion of the First Peloponnesian War. 4.21–4.22

Events in Sicily. 4.24–4.25

Siege of the Spartans on Sphacteria continues without result. 4.26–4.27

Cleon takes command at Pylos. 4.27–4.29

Battle of Sphacteria results in the capture of all the Spartans trapped there. 4.29–4.41

Nicias leads an Athenian attack on Corinth. 4.42–4.45

End of Corcyraean revolution. 4.46–4.48

Athenians capture Cythera, an island off the Peloponnese, and Thyrea, a town in the Peloponnese. Sparta is hemmed in on all sides and desperate. 4.53–4.57

Sicilian cities make peace in conference at Gela, frustrating Athenian designs on the island. 4.58–65

Speech of Hermocrates at Gela. 4.59–4.64

Athenian attack on Megara. 4.66–4.74

Capture of Nisaea. 4.69

Inconclusive engagements at Megara. 4.73

Megara eludes Athenian capture. 4.74

Invasion of Boeotia. 4.76, 4.89–4.101.2

Battle of Delium results in Athenian retreat into a temple, which the Boeotians attack and burn down. 4.90–4.100

Brasidas marches through Thessaly to Thrace and begins to cause Athenian subject cities to revolt. 4.78–4.88

Speech of Brasidas to the Acanthians. 4.85–4.87

Fall of Amphipolis to Brasidas. 4.102–4.108

Continued successes of Brasidas in Thrace. 4.111–4.135

Brasidas secures the revolt of the garrison of Torone. 4.110–4.116

One-year armistice between Athenians and Spartans. 4.117–4.118

Scione revolts from Athens to Brasidas. 4.120–4.123

Truce breaks down. 4.122–4.123.

Athenians retake Mende and besiege Scione. 4.129–4.131.

Book 5 (422–415 BC)

Death of Cleon and Brasidas. 5.10

Peace of Nicias. 5.13–5.24

Feeling against Sparta in the Peloponnese

League of the Mantineans, Eleans, Argives, and Athenians. 5.27–5.48

Battle of Mantinea and breaking up of the League. 5.63–5.81

The Melian Dialogue. 5.84–5.113

Fate of Melos. 5.116

Book 6 (415–414 BC)

The Sicilian Expedition. 6.8–6.52

Early history of Sicily. 6.1–6.6

Speeches of Nicias and Alcibiades. 6.8–6.26

Affair of the Hermae. 6.27–6.29, 6.53

Departure of the expedition to Sicily. 6.30–6.32

Speeches of Hermocrates and Athenagoras at Syracuse. 6.33–41

Arrival of Athenians in Sicily. 6.42–52

Digression on Harmodius and Aristogiton. 6.53–6.58

Recall and flight of Alcibiades. 6.60–6.61

Athenian victory at Syracuse. 6.62–6.71

Debate between Hermocrates and Euphemus at Camarina. 6.72–6.88

Alcibiades at Sparta. 6.88–6.93

Athenian victories at Syracuse. 6.94–103

Spartans dispatch Gylippus to Sicily and clash with Athens at Argos. 6.104–105

Book 7 (414–413 BC)

Arrival of Gylippus at Syracuse. 7.1–7.3

Fortification of Decelea. 7.19–7.30

Successes of the Syracusans.

Arrival of Demosthenes

Defeat of the Athenians at Epipolae. 7.42–7.59

Folly and obstinacy of Nicias

Battles in the Great Harbour

Retreat and annihilation of the Athenian army. 7.72–7.87

Book 8 (413–411 BC)

Disbelief and despair in Athens. 8.1

Allies revolt. 8.2–4

Persians offer support to Sparta. 8.5

Isthmian Festival. 8.9

Alcamenes. 8.10

Alcibiades encourages Endius to revolt. 8.12

Alcibiades encourages Chios to revolt. 8.14

Athens reverses law on reserve funds. 8.15

Sparta and Persian alliance. 8.18

Chians encourage revolt. 8.19

Samos commons overthrow upper classes. 8.21

Chians and Spartans v Athens and Argos; Ionians defeat Dorians. 8.25

Hermocrates prepares “finishing blow” to Athens, Alcibiades in Teichiussa. 8.26

Phrynichus = a “man of sense” retreats. 8.27

Tissaphernes distributes pay to Spartans. 8.29

The Spartan treaty with Persia. 8.37

Conflict between Pedaitus and Astyochus. 8.39

Slaves desert Chios. 8.40

Lichas tries to renegotiate treaty with Persia. The Spartans give not liberty but a “Median master” to the Greeks. 8.43

Rhodes revolts. 8.44

Astyochus is ordered to kill Alcibiades, who flees from Sparta to Tissaphernes. 8.45

Alcibiades advises Tissaphernes to let Athens and Sparta wear each other out. 8.46

Alcibiades plots his return to Athens. 8.47–8.48

Pissander to pave way for Alcibiades’ return. 8.49

Alcibiades betrays Phrynichus. 8.50

Phrynichus fortifies Samos. 8.51

Alcibiades encourages Tissaphernes to befriend Athens. 8.52

Pisander in Athens proposes deal: alliance with Persia, end of democracy, return of Alcibiades. 8.53–8.54

Athens defeats Chians, Pedaritus. 8.55

Alcibiades’ plans w/ Tissaphernes unravel. 8.56

Tissaphernes resolves to keep both sides equal, pays Sparta. 8.57

another treaty bet Persia and Sparta. 8.58–8.59

Pisander est. oligarchy in Athens, confusion in Samos. 8.63

Oligarchy in Athens, popular leaders are killed. "government of the 5,000." 8.65

Oligarchy triumphant. 8.65

Popular party suspicious of each other. 8.66

Commissioners to frame a new constitution = tyranny of the four hundred. 8.67

Pisander, Phrynichus, Theramenes = leaders of the oligarchy. 8.68

The 400 with daggers dismiss the council (Boule) . 8.69

Oligarchs offer to make peace with Sparta. 8.70

Spartan forces move to Athens' walls. Oligarchs again offer peace w/ Sparta. 8.71

Seamen at Samos reject oligarchy. 8.72

Turmoil at Samos, the Athenian crews est democracy, kill 30 oligarchs. 8.73

Exaggerated report at Samos of horrors at Athens. 8.74

Thrasybulus and Thrasyllus leaders of the democratic faction in Samos. 8.75

The army replaces oligarchy in Samos, Alcibiades promises alliance with Persia. 8.76

Debate in Samos. 8.77

Pelop soldiers anxious to fight, Astyochus unwilling to fight at sea. Tissaphernes fleet never arrives. 8.78

Athenians reinforced, Pelop unwilling to fight. 8.79

Revolt of Byzantium. 8.80

Alcibiades recalled, promises Persian aid. 8.81

Alcibiades elected general, "put all their affairs in his hands. 8.82

Tissaphernes fails to pay Spartan soldiers. 8.83

Pelop sailors threaten Astyochus, who is recalled and replaced by Mindarus. 8.84

Hermocrates is banished from Syracuse, he opposes Sparta's alliance with Persia. 8.85

Alcibiades prevents Samian soldiers' attack on Athens, calls for end to the 400. 8.86

Tissaphernes/Persia continues policy of letting Athens and Sparta wear each other out. 8.87

Alcibiades knew Tissaphernes would never send ships to support Sparta. 8.88

Oligarchs in Athens break ranks, Thermenes and Aristocrates fear Alcibiades power in Samos. 8.89

Phrynichus, Aristarchus, Pisander, and Antiphon most opposed to Democracy, again appeal to Sparta. Fortify the Piraeus. 8.90

The oligarchs' plans. 8.91

The oligarchy collapses. 8.92

Oligarchs and soldiers meet on Acropolis and agree to reforms. 8.93

Pelop ships appear. 8.94

Pelop ships defeat Athenians, Euboea revolts. 8.95

Athens despairs. "Lacedaemonians proved the most convenient people in the world for the Athenians to be at war with." 8.96

The 400 are deposed, the 5000 the "best government" in Thuc's lifetime. A "hoplite democracy," no pay for public service (i.e. no thetes). 8.97

Pisander and Alexicles withdraw to Decelea, Aristarchus takes barbarian archers to Oenoe. The oligarchy is over. 8.98

Thrasybulus and Thrasyllus victory at sea renews Athens' hope. 8.103–8.106

Alcibiades returns. 8.108

Abrupt ending of the history. 8.109